READING ACTIVITY 1/6

HAMLET, PRINCE OF DENMARK

To get into the Story

Hamlet is one of William Shakespeare's (1564-1616) best known plays. It is a great revenge tragedy with all the timeless and universal elements of human emotion. Hamlet is much more than a revenge tragedy because it contemplates life, death and the reason for existence. It has rarely been off the stage in the 400 years since it was written!

After the sudden death of his father, the king, the young prince Hamlet returns to Elsinore Castle in Denmark. Here he finds that his mother has already remarried and he is very upset. Her new husband is Hamlet's uncle, Claudius, the brother of the old king. One night Hamlet sees his father's ghost who says that he was poisoned by his own brother! The ghost tells Hamlet to take revenge, but will Hamlet be able to do this?

Part 1 – Read the excerpt from Hamlet, “A ghost at Elsinore”, and then do the activity below.

The king and queen, followed by all the courtiers, left the Great Hall and Hamlet was left alone with his thoughts.

‘I’d prefer to be dead!’ he cried. ‘Life has no meaning any more. I can’t believe it! my father’s only been dead for two months and my mother’s already married again! Oh, women are so weak! Even an animal would have mourned for longer. And she’s married Claudius! A man who is the exact opposite of my father! how could she? It’s sure to end badly.’

Just at that moment, the door opened and Horatio, his old friend from university, came in. There were two castle guards with him.

‘Horatio!’ Hamlet exclaimed, a smile brightening his face for once. ‘How good to see you! But why aren’t you in Wittenberg?’

‘I wanted to come to your father’s funeral, Hamlet.’

‘My mother’s wedding, you mean,’ replied Hamlet bitterly.

‘It’s true. There wasn’t much time between them.’

‘They were so close together that we ate the leftovers<sup>1</sup> from the funeral at the wedding banquet!’

‘Your father was a great king,’ said Horatio.

‘He was a perfect human being,’ said Hamlet, sinking back into melancholy.<sup>2</sup> I’ll never know a man like him again.’

‘Hamlet, I have to tell you something,’ said Horatio very seriously. ‘I think I saw him last night.’

‘Who? My father?’

Hamlet’s melancholic expression quickly turned to one of shock, then suspicion.

‘Is this a joke, Horatio? My father’s dead.’

‘Calm down and I’ll explain everything.’

Horatio took hold of his friend’s arm and, as they walked around the Great Hall, he told him what had happened.

‘Those two guards over there told me they had seen a ghost while they were keeping watch.’

1 leftovers : food remaining at the end of a meal.

2 melancholy : sadness.

READING ACTIVITY 4/6

PART 2 – Read the excerpt from Chapter One, A Ghost at Elsinore and then do the activity.

That night Hamlet and Horatio joined the guards on the battlements.

‘This is when it usually appears,’ said Horatio quietly.

The castle clock was striking twelve when they saw a pale glow in the darkness. It was moving silently towards them. It was the ghost! As it got nearer, Hamlet recognized his father’s helmet. He was terrified.

‘Father?’ he managed to say. ‘Is that you? What do you want?’

The ghost beckoned<sup>1</sup> to him.

‘He wants you to follow him, Hamlet,’ whispered Horatio.

‘Don’t go, sir!’ one of the guards said. ‘It’s too dangerous.’

‘I must go. It’s my father and he wants to say something to me,’ replied Hamlet following the ghost into the darkness.

When they were alone together the ghost spoke.

‘I am your father’s ghost,’ it said. ‘But I will suffer and will not be able to rest in peace until the wrongs done to me are put right.’

‘Wrongs? What do you mean?’

‘If you love me, Hamlet...’

‘Of course I do. With all my heart!’

‘...then you must avenge<sup>2</sup> my murder!’

Hamlet’s blood froze.

‘They told you a poisonous snake bit me, but it isn’t true,’ the ghost went on.

‘The snake was my own brother, who was in love with the queen and wanted to have her and my kingdom. While I was sleeping in the garden, he poured poison in my ear and killed me. I was murdered without a chance to say goodbye to you. Avenge my death, Hamlet! The sun will rise soon and I must go now. Goodbye! Goodbye! Remember me!’

1 beckoned : made a sign for someone to come nearer.

2 avenge : punish a person responsible for something bad done to you.
